When you have endured something as traumatic as a fire, it is very difficult to see a positive outcome. You feel like you have been violated and everything you worked so hard for literally "went up in smoke". On top of that, you have people out there looking to gain from your loss without considering the emotional turmoil you are going through.

I was out of my home for almost seven months as a result of a fire before I finally met David Post with EIS. Prior to meeting David, I encountered one bad contractor after another with very little progress being made in regards to repairing my home.

Two days after my initial meeting with David, his team assumed work on my home which was in early February 2010. I moved back in my home on March 31, 2010! My life changed the day I met David and I cannot express how happy I was with EIS. My stress levels went down and I was actually able to smile.

Outside of the impeccable customer service I was extremely pleased with the craftsmanship and design ideas. The entire team was always paying attention to details and treated my home as if it was theirs. My home is absolutely beautiful inside and out.

David, you and your team (Mike, Marcin, and Mike) as well as anyone I communicated with at your office were always professional and courteous and made me feel like I was your only client.

This might sound weird, but you and your team will always be a part of my home.

Sincerely,

Theresa Nichols
